Form VI —

Mom — No more glasses, curly hair or uncoordinated outfits. Thank You for all of your love and support. It only gets better from here.

Renee — We may not spend every waking moment together anymore but I think we can handle it. I know that I couldn't have made it through the year without you. This is definitely not a goodbye but a beginning for the laughs and memories to come. Reincarnation is a wonderful thing.

Chris C — I'll see you in Queens. What more do you want me to say? Never a better brother shall I find.

Mark R — Do you have anymore good stories?

Keenen — You change like the seasons — I never encountered one that I didn't like. We'll always have third period and all the times after school that we never hung out. You can believe me when I say that I'll miss you.

Nick and Neil — Noodles were never the same. I'll see you at graduation.

James — Know any good mind games?

Ron — You're definite New York material.

Allison — Take it all in stride and let it all roll off of your back. You've got my number chickey.

Bruce — Life goes on although I have to say that you have definitely affected mine but don't let it go to your head. Amends may not have been made but we will always know how we really felt. You'll always know where to find me, just turn on your walkman . . . Buffalo Springfield — For what it's worth.

In the book of life, another chapter is done.

Starting over tomorrow, to write another one.

Anya Black — You're an inspiration to me. In the four years we have been together you taught me a lot and stuck with me. Helping me out through all of my problems. There were the rough times and then there were the good times. We always got through the rough times when there was no possible way to get out. I admire you not just because you cared for me and others, but because you stayed strong when others tried to put you down. We finally made it! You're that great friend that comes only once in a lifetime. You're not also a very beautiful person in the outside but also in the inside where it counts most. I still have you in that fourth chamber in my heart. You will always be a part of me, no matter what happens. Nothing can ever separate us. I'll leave you for now Ms. Black but not forever. I'll always love you.

"The secret of friendship is reliability, being true to your word, your promises, your commitments."

Alex Chayanne — Stop clowning around in class. You're going to have to go to college you know.

Felix — I'll see you in the city and good luck in your future if you know what I mean.

Chris — You MONKEY! It's scary knowing that you're going to be a senior. Start getting your act together and you be straight. Good luck.

Larry — Best wishes being a prefect. I knew you were going to be one. Don't stop playing ball, you can go a long way. You know where to reach me if you need anything.

Matt — Rosty! You're a funny kid, but don't get into any trouble like you did before. We'll see each other another day.

Teresa — Take care of yourself and Felix. Both of you need to stick together. You're a really sweet person.

Caren-Kim — Thanks for the back rubs. I really needed it. Good luck in the future.

Mr. L. — You've been a great headmaster for me and your students, especially as my housemaster. You only get a dorm like this once in a lifetime.

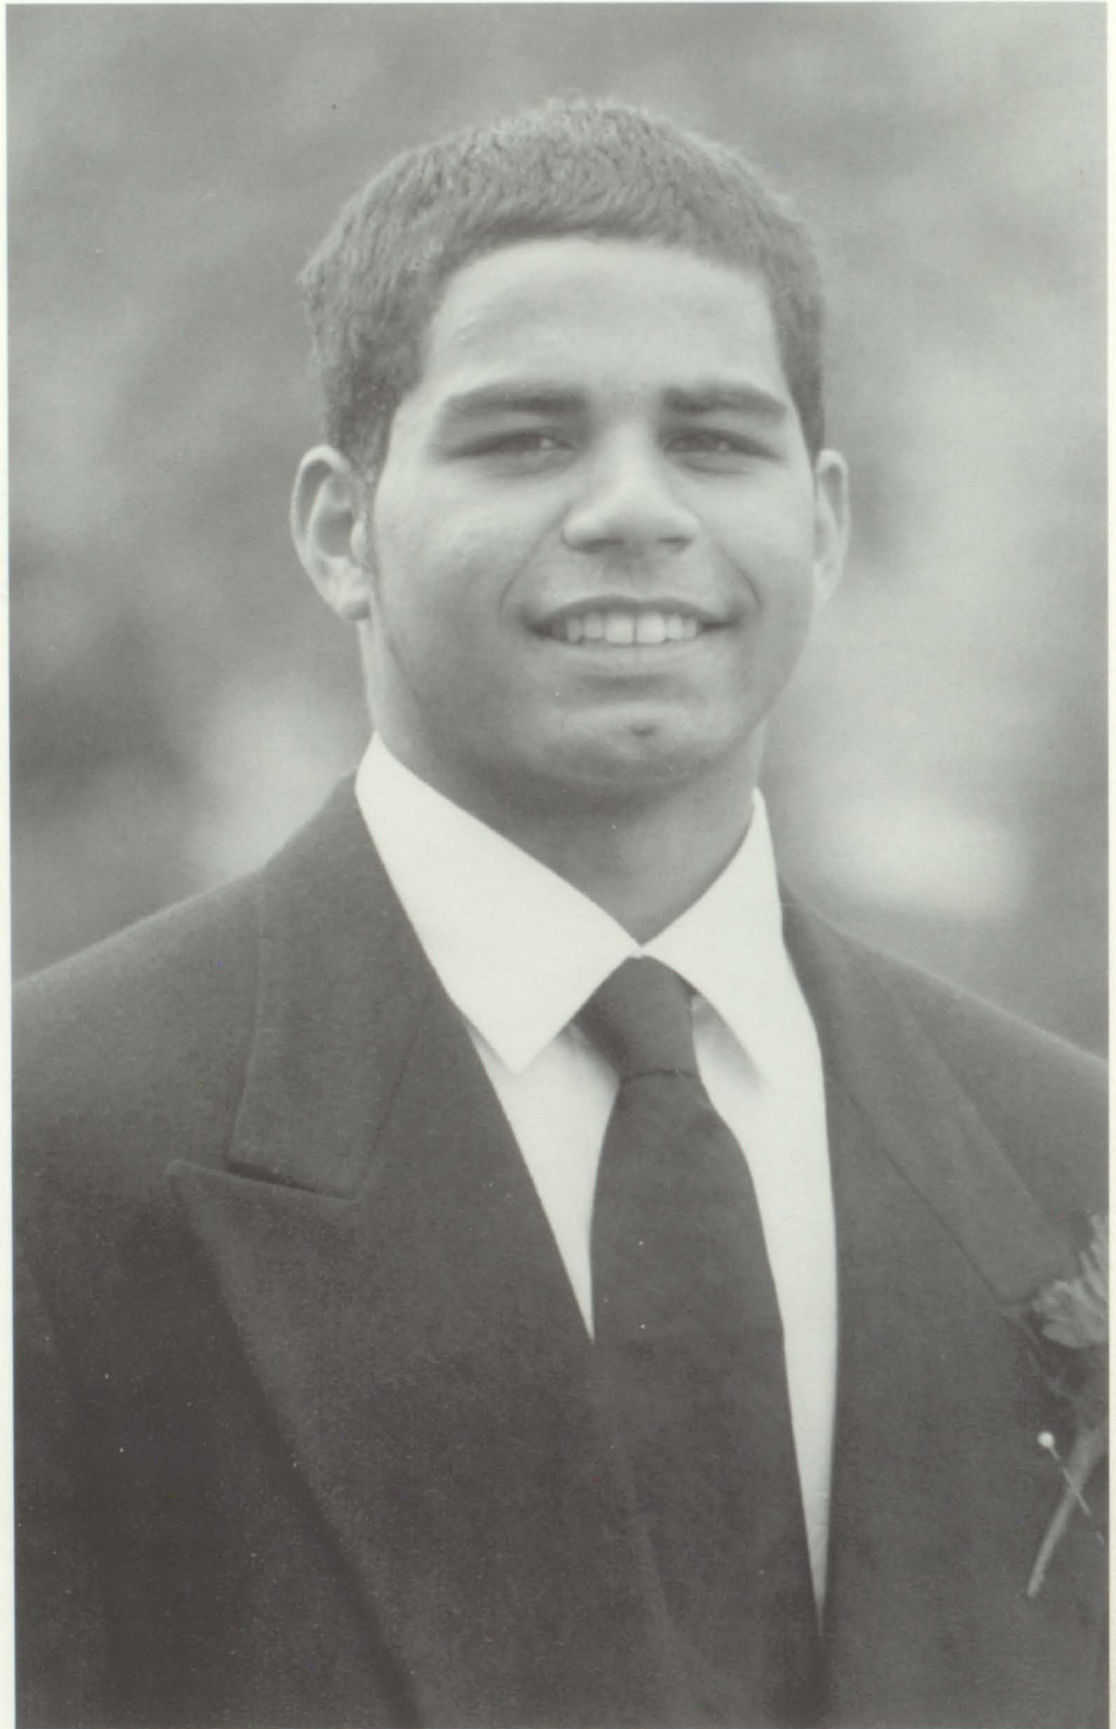

Donn W. — Thanks for the swimming lessons.

Claudia — Take care of yourself. I'll miss you.

Hoosac Lifeguards

New Core of Highly Trained Students & Faculty

With the realization that New York State requires certified American Red Cross Lifeguards to be protecting our pool whenever it is open, Donn Wright went through rigorous training by the Red Cross, becoming a lifeguard instructor, a certification he obtained a few years before when he was a boarding school student. Also, history master Jason Wright acquired qualifications as a Red Cross Lifeguard, and so did Athletic Director, Michael Ryan.

To qualify to take the course, a candidate must be a strong swimmer and pass a lengthy and rigorous swimming test. The course is presented in a 300-page textbook and on video tapes. It calls for twenty-eight hours of training and at Hoosac it's done in eight separate sessions. There is a written forty-question examination in which each candidate must receive eighty percent or better. Candidates must pass a course in CPR for the Professional Rescuer and in First Aid before qualifying as a lifeguard.

Henry Bloomquist Honored

On October 7, a banquet was held to honor Henry Bloomquist. It was not his birthday, and he was not retiring, it just seemed after all these years at Hoosac we ought to do something special for Henry! In the fall of 1966 Henry retired from his job as a pattern maker at Noble & Wood Company and came to Hoosac. He's been here since, so he is our longest tenured employee.

A pattern maker is the most sophisticated level for anyone who works with wood. Henry made wooden patterns to be cast steel molds for machinery parts, therefore, his accuracy had to be within thousands of an inch.

Henry learned his trade as a pattern maker in 1917 at the Walter A. Wood Company in Hoosick Falls.

Many of Henry's friends from town were invited and Hoosac maintenance people who have worked with Henry such as George Spendiff and Wally Davendonis.

He likes to wear sweaters and was presented with a navy blue sweater from L. L. Bean with the Hoosac School crest on it. He was also presented with a framed certificate making note of his long, loyal service. He enjoyed seeing many friends and colleagues and he enjoyed the dinner. He addressed the student body afterwards, counseling them to work hard and get the best education they can. Henry now works three days a week, half a day each time. He repairs broken furniture and all sorts of things that need repair and attention. He is now 94 years of age.

Students of the Week

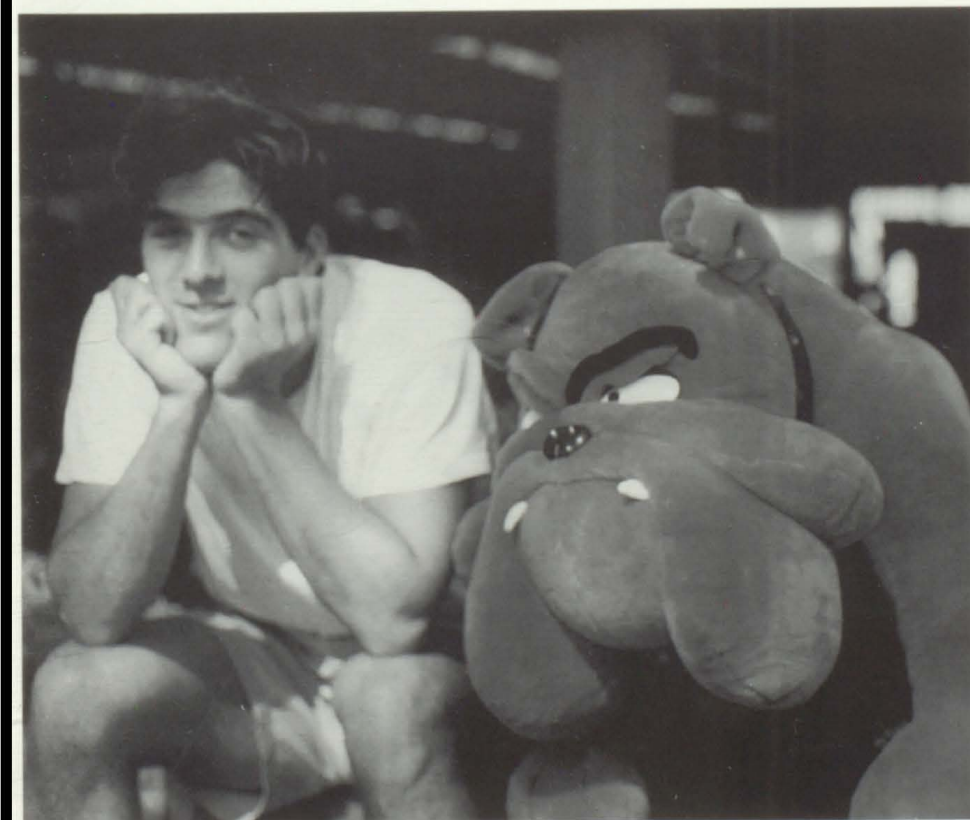

Every week at Hoosac the faculty votes for a student of the week. The dean asks for nominations and then holds an election. Nominators name the student they have in mind and why they think the honor is deserved. The student of the week is called forward by the headmaster at lunch and awarded an impressive certificate. The student of the week has the privilege of selecting any faculty member to take out to dinner and the school picks up the tab. The following students have been honored in this program:
